Lanterman Vascular Surgery Student Research Program

Through the generous support of The Joseph B. & Marjorie M. Lanterman Endowed Research and Education Fund in Vascular Surgery at Northwestern's Feinberg School of Medicine, a student research program developed in 2015 is open to students interested in pursuing mentored clinical or basic science surgical research. This program includes direct interaction with at least one of the faculty members within the Division of Vascular Surgery at Northwestern along with a specific research project. The intent of the program is to provide students an early educational experience in surgical research along with one-on-one mentorship.

The program is an 8-week full-time (35-40 hours per week) commitment with computer access, statistical support, and inclusion in weekly educational conferences. A maximum of 2 awards ($3,500) are granted each year. Interested students are encouraged to apply by submitting a complete resume along with the application form.

Deadline for receipt of applications is March 1, 2024.
